notice of the prior mortgage. Where a judgment is obtained against a mortgagor subsequently to the mortgage, but before the mortgage is re-corded, the mortgage has the priority. But perhaps a bo-na fide purchaser at sheriff's sale under such judgment, would be preferred to the mortgagor. Decree affirmed. Andrews v. Russell et al. Error to the Shelby C. C. Opinion by Dewey J. Assumpsit by the payees against the maker of a promissory note, dated in May, 1840, for $1204 50, payable in six months. Plea, the general issue. On the trial the plaintiff gave in evidence the note described in the declaration; whereupon it was agreed by the parties that the consideration of the note was a debt of $1005 due from the maker to the payees and that the sum of $109 50 was included in the note as interest for the forbearance of the debt for six months, being at the rate of 20 per cent per annum, making the aggregate as expressed on the face of the note. The cause was submitted to the court. Judgment for the plaintiff for $1095; and the defendants for the costs. In Fowler vs. Throckmorton 6 Blackford 326, this court decided that an action could not be sustained on a writing obligatory for the payment of a certain sum of money, a part of which was illegal interest, on the ground that the statute of 1838, which forbade the reception of, or agreement for usury, rendered the contract void. The same statute was in force at the date of the promissory note on which this action is founded. Since the above mentioned decision was made, the Legislature has passed an act, by which it is provided that usurious contracts shall not be void, but that in actions upon them, the plaintiff shallrecover the principal sum without interest; and that the defendant shall recover cost. R. S. 1843, 581 sec. 29. This statute we construe to include contracts made before, as well as those made after its passage. The judgment of the circuit court conforms to it, and is valid, unless the law itself, so far as it respects pre-existing contracts, is void. This depends upon the constitutional right of the Legislature to pass a retrospective statute. The only provisions in the Constitution of the United States, or in the constitution of this State, restrictive of the power of the Legislature to enact laws operating upon past transactions, are those which forbid the passage of bills of attainder, ex post facto laws, and laws impairing the obligation of contracts.

The first prohibition is too evidently out of the question on the present occasion to need comment. The phrase ex post facto is technical and has relation only to criminal laws; it does not embrace statutes respecting private rights or civil remedies. Colder vs. Bull B Dall. 386-Strong vs. State, 1 Blackford 193. It has. therefore, no bearing upon the law under consideration Nor is the obligation of any contract impaired by the statute: on the contrary its object is to give force and ob-ligation to contracts which, before its passage, were illegal and void. It is retrospective, certainly; but that it is not unconstitutional for that reason is too well established to be questioned. Brach vs. Woodhull, Pet. C. C. Rep. 2. A Court of Probate in Connecticut made a decree dis approving a will, in consequence of which the right of the heir at law to the devised premises remained unim-paired. The Legislature of that State passed a law setting aside the decree and ordering a new trial. The will was finally established and the devisee held the property. The Supreme Court of the United States decided the law to be constitutional. Colder vs. Bull, supra. Two persons held land in common in Pennsylvania, under what was called a Connecticut title. They made partition and became mutual tenants to each other under leases. In an action of ejectment respecting some of the premises thus leased, the Supreme Court of Pennsylvania decided that the relation of landlord and tenant, could not exist bereal estate to pay debts, was procured from a Court of Probate, there. Under that license and for that purpose. passed a law confirming the title in the purchaser. It was decided that the law was constitutional; and that it gave

Wilkinson vs. Leland et al , 2 Pet. 627. . Thus we see that retrospective laws are not necessarily unconstitutional. That it is in general inexpedient, and injurious to land purchased by them is a bond of indemnity against the public interest to pass them is not to be questioned But a state of things may, and sometimes does exist, which To an action on the penal part of such a bond, a plea, renders retrospective legislation desirable, and highly equitable in its effects; and we cannot but think that such ly is good; and a replication that executions have issued a crisis demanded the passage of a law which we have been considering. For more than 30 years prior to 1831. usurious contracts were expressly declared by law to be valid for the principal sum, and void only as to the interest; and though from that period the saving clause was repealed, the effect of the repeal upon the validity of the contract was not judicially settled until the decision of the case of Fowler vs. Throckmorton, supra, in 1842. In the meantime it is reasonable to suppose many usurious contracts had been made under the belief that nothin but the interest was jeoparded,-contracts which marer would have existed had the public been apprised of the real state of the law. Under these eircumstances we think the law can be vindicated on the score of sound policy and justice, as well as on that of constitutionality We have said that the only provisions in the federal or State constitution restrictive of the power of the legisla-

Whig Fixtures to the Government. We copy the following from the U.S. Journal of July 26. The statement falls short of the truth. Allen v. Fleming. In error to the Adams C. C. Judg. It is high time that a change should take place. The whigs will howl about "proscription," no doubt; but nobody will care for that. FACTS FOR THE PEOPLE.-Upon referring to the House report No. 186, 7th Congress, 1st session, we find that Stephen Pleasonton, then a clerk in the Department of State-now Fifth Auditor of the Treasumarried the defendant may show that fact on the trial, ry, received $558 56; and that Thomas H. Gilliss, then clerk to the accountant of the Navy Office, now chief clerk to the Fourth Auditor of the Treasury.

> We may therefore presume that these gentlemen per annum only twenty-five years, at an aggregate salary of but $75,000 a piece. How hard it would be to remove these venerable men!

> They have had a "negro excitement" at Columbus, Ohio. A colored boy aged 13 committed violence on a white girl of only fire! The boy was arrested and committed to jail, in default of $700 bonds. Some of the population consequently went to work and hammered the negroes generally and miscool down a little, perhaps.

A COMPANY of Oregon emigrants, consisting of twenty two wagons, have entirely missed their way, and have got near the mouth of the Yellow Store. Harding v. Griffin. In error to the Marion C. C.
